

Anuoluwapo Fadairo

I Carry

I carry my head high

I carry my backpack

I carry my constant need for perfection

I carry my ambivalent personality

I carry the constant thoughts of expectations and pressure

I carry my gold earrings in both ears

I carry my bad habit of overthinking and stressing

I carry my headphones

I carry my internal struggles

I carry a fluffy pillow for comfort

I am a bottle of opportunities and colours

We are a sign of change awaiting to occur to change narratives and break stereotypes

We carry the stories of young people who need a platform to be heard

Whilst also trying to navigate the constantly evolving world and the intersection between our identities

We are change makers and leaders that carry recommendations and solutions to improving the world around us